Galerie des Machines
Built for the Paris Exposition of 1889

Included here for the display of a number of interesting “People Movers”
The glass-roofed building under construction
Erecting the exhibits (Illustrated London News 1889)
The “Pontes Roulants” or electrically powered moving gantries
Initially used to move machinery exhibits into place and later to transport visitors from one end of the exhibition to the other Another view of the Pontes Roulants (Illustrated London News 18890