THE MACARONI CASE

The Messrs. Flour and Water are in an awful mood
The macaroni that they make comes back marked "Checked, No good."

They take it to their Foreman,
"What makes the stuff so bad?"
He says "If you'll just come with me, to show you I'll be glad."

“Our dryroom, sirs, is hopeless, the goods will check and sour.
In spite of all that I can do we’re losing every hour.”

“We either sweat too slowly, which sours the stuff, just so,
Or else we dry so rapidly we check it 'fore we know.”

The partners then examine, some goods the dealers say Is just the kind they’re looking for, the best in every way.

They write the other people and ask them please to tell What makes their goods so wonderful and how they dry so well.

The answer came back quickly its wording you can see The partners read it hurriedly and nodded happily.

They quickly 'phoned to Carrier to come and tell them how To make their plant a modern one as fast as things allow.

And with his usual promptness comes "Mech", his face asmile,
"We'll have Ejector dryers here within a little while."

"Mech" kept his word and shortly their dryers were complete, With automatic instruments to regulate the heat.

And now when Flour and Water their finished goods inspect, They smile at competition for their goods have no defect.
